If you know alumni or have loved ones who have been called to active duty in the Middle East, please contact the Alumni Office. We will place their names on the Wall of Prayer.

The College family prays regularly for family members, alumni, and friends of the College who are deployed in the Persian Gulf. The Wall of Prayer, located in the James T. Jeremiah Chapel, is a reminder of those men and women.

Alums Affected By War

Training To Fight

Dave '84 and Angela (Johnston '84N) Jones with their son, Madison.

After three years in the Marine Corps, 1st Lt. Dave Jones '84 has faced some changes in his life since the Middle East crisis erupted. Dave, his wife Angela (Johnston '84N), and their 18-month-old son, Madison, currently are stationed at Whiting Naval Station in Milton, Florida.

The war has affected the Jones' base housing. Security has been tightened. Gates to their housing development have been secured, and everyone must show an ID to enter. Visits to the Jones household must be cleared by special permission. Everyone has attended anti-terrorist seminars.

Upon completion of Marine Corp Officers Basic Training School in March, Dave will train on a Cobra aircraft in California. Depending upon the length and severity of the Persian Gulf crisis, training may take anywhere from three to six months. Even if the war ends quickly, Dave anticipates being assigned to the Persian Gulf to assist occupational forces and relieve those who have been fighting. "I don't want to go to war. But it is my job, and I have been trained as a Marine pilot," Dave states. "It is weird, really, but I feel like I am missing out on being there with friends I trained with."

As Dave and Angie look back on their time with many young men and their wives, they are thankful for those with whom they were able to share their faith. And now both Angie and Dave are finding broader opportunities to minister to families at the base.

Angie states, "I can't imagine what wives who have no concept of God must feel as their husbands leave for war. I know I can trust God, and that is a comfort if and when Dave leaves." Her greatest fear for her husband is that he become a P.O.W. in Saddam Hussein's hands. "Those whom we have seen on television—the men who have been captured—it is easy to see their lives are in the balance."

Dave's cousin is currently flying missions in Kuwait in an F-14 Navy fighter plane. Dave and Angie are constantly praying for him and for other friends who are in Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, and Israel.

Trapped In Iraq

The Sami and Roxanne (Butler '69) Kanani family.

When Sami Kanani traveled to Baghdad on July 6, his wife Roxanne (Butler) Kanani, a 1969 Cedarville College elementary education graduate, never dreamed his safety would be in jeopardy. Sam, a missionary with Baptist Mid-Missions, was trapped in Iraq when the gulf crisis broke out.

Sam had gone to Iraq to bring his ailing mother to the United States. The death of an uncle had left her alone and unable to care for herself. Sam's goal was to make the necessary arrangements for his mother to leave the country. But while he was there, Iraq invaded the country of Kuwait.

Roxanne eagerly awaited for a phone call from her husband, since the sanctions embargo prohibited overseas mail from entering or exiting the country. Although she telephoned day and night, she was unable to reach him. Cables were returned unopened, and letters written in Arabic and sent through the country of Jordan did not get through. Roxanne did not hear from Sam from July 27 until Thanksgiving, when his long-awaited call came.

Between that time and the beginning of the war, their telephone calls were limited to four minutes each. Then they were cut off. All the phones were tapped, and every word was spoken with extreme caution. Roxanne states that the last call she received from her husband was January 9.

Roxanne met Sam when he was preparing for a ministry in missions. She was teaching in a public school when he came to her small church in Racine, Wisconsin, on deputation. Sam had come from Baghdad to the states as a teenager to live with his father, who was a businessman on Wall Street. Sam became a U.S. citizen and was enrolled in Stonybrook Christian High School in Long Island, New York. That's where he first heard the gospel and was saved.

Roxanne has continued their ministry with Campus Bible Fellowship on the Kent State and Akron University campuses. "The Bible studies continue, with the help of local pastors and friends. I maintain personal discipleship with some of the girls as well as Friday night socials," she says. The Kananis have been involved with campuses in the Akron area since 1986. Their ministry with international students has flourished due to Sam's heritage and understanding of the Islamic religion.

Nathema 17, Nasim 15, and Nabel 5, pray for their father's safe return to the United States. When Nabel watches the news with Roxanne, he often asks if Daddy will be all right. Roxanne comforts him with the fact that Jesus is with Daddy.

Michael '80 and Donna (Ford '86) Aiken.

Busily Waiting For War To End

Michael Aiken's job is to ready 200 men for combat in an amphibious assault against the Iraqi army. Donna (Ford '86) Aiken's job is to wait, encourage, and go on with daily life in Camp LeJeune, North Carolina.

Michael graduated in 1980 with a pre-seminary/Bible degree, worked at Cedarville College through 1980, and then joined the Marine Corps in January 1981. Ten years later, he is doing the job he has been trained for. Mike carries the title of company commander for headquarters and service. He leads his 200 plus men in daily training exercises and drills for combat duty as their ship waits in the Persian Gulf.

Traveling with the Marine Corps excited Aiken when he first enlisted ten years ago. Now he loves his career. Donna states, "This is his job. Mike has been training for the past ten years for this. No one wants a war, but most servicemen hope they will be able to use what they have learned during this conflict."

Donna admits that the thought of leaving Camp LeJeune when Michael went to the Persian Gulf on August 20 was tempting. "It was two months after our wedding, and all my family lives in Ohio." But Donna states that even though she had been at Camp LeJeune for only a short time, she had begun teaching English and GED classes for Coastal Community College. She also had started master's work in reading education at the University of North Carolina in Wilmington.

"I'm glad I stayed. Being in a community of other women whose husbands are in the Middle East is very comforting. They know exactly how I feel," she says. In a town where one out of five women has a husband, father, or son deployed to the Middle East, the ladies talk to each other.

Donna spends much of her time visiting other families and attending wives' functions. "When I visit a mother who has four children, it keeps me from feeling sorry for myself. Some of the fathers haven't seen their newborns. I have three friends who had their babies in September. Their husbands left for the Middle East in August with Michael. I'm also fortunate to know that Mike is on ship duty. Sand war is scary, and many of the men that Michael trained with have just gone over to fight on land."

Donna proclaims that there are many opportunities for witnessing, and she continues to use life-style evangelism in the community. "If I can say anything to comfort, I will." Donna finds it a challenge to listen to the different views that unbelievers have about the events in the Middle East. "I know of one other Christian woman outside of my church, Enon Chapel." But Donna keeps her ear to the ground and continues to encourage others when the opportunity is there.

"The Postman has become everyone's best friend." Donna gets a letter from Michael about every other week. Mail is precious and so are the three times that Mike has telephoned while in port. Donna says she will really be happy when she receives the date of Michael's return. "I'm planning a long and relaxing second honeymoon!"

Letter From The Director

This year of change, both personally and professionally, forces me to evaluate the past year and look at the 1991-92 plan for the Cedarville College alumni body.

Thank you for your support and acceptance as the Alumni Office at Cedarville College has gone through some changes. We have attempted to add a measure of quality to the programs already offered to alumni. We have renamed the Alumni news publication, Inspire, and have tried to plan some events for our younger alumni as well as our heritage alumni.

The Annual Fund reflects a record breaking year for alumni giving. Thank you for meeting the challenge! The average alumni gift is $36.65, and your gift to ensure continued quality education for Cedarville College students is greatly appreciated.

The Alumni Office is also anticipating more alumni involvement with recruiting students, networking with current students, and organizing alumni activities. Your volunteer services are invaluable! We appreciate a good word spoken. Thank you for sharing your college experience with others. We also continue to receive many letters from alumni informing us of current events in their lives. Please keep in touch!

Cedarville College has begun a four-year engineering program with 41 freshmen enrolled in the first year classes. Within the next year Cedarville College will continue to change as we make plans for expanding the Science Center to provide expanded laboratories and classrooms for the Science, Engineering, and Nursing departments.

With our country at war and many families, friends, and loved ones involved, we are praising God for His sovereign control. We pray for our alumni--for those who hurt, those who support, those who encourage, and those who share.

Praying for peace,

We Need Your INPUT!

At Homecoming 1991, we will make our annual alumni award presentations. We need your nominations for Alumnus of the Year, Honorary Alumnus of the Year, and Distinguished Service Award recipients. Thanks!

Fun for All Summer Enrichment Conference & Salute to Summer

July 10-13, 1991

This summer the Alumni and Admissions offices of Cedarville College will combine their efforts to provide a motivating, challenging, and fun-filled three days for alumni and church youth groups.

For the past ten years, the Alumni Association has hosted the Summer Enrichment Conference (SEC) as a mini-vacation for alumni and friends. Another summer tradition for the past 13 years has been Salute to Summer, a week-end retreat for youth groups and their sponsors, hosted by the Admissions staff.

Combining these two efforts seems only natural. While teens are being challenged in their Christian life, the adults will participate in workshops on a variety of topics including ministry, encouragement, and money management.

You will want to plan to attend this event which will include stimulating discussion, good food, and a fun day at King's Island Amusement Park. Mark these dates on your calendar: July 10-13, 1991. And watch your mail for a special brochure with all the details of Summer Enrichment Conference and Salute to Summer!

Attention, Golfers

The Yellow Jacket Club will host the annual Alumni Golf Tournament on Saturday, July 13, following SEC. Watch your mail for details!

Cedarville College Alumni China Tour

Myron Youngman '76 welcomes you to join him as alumni and friends visit Hong Kong, Beijing, Shanghai, Suzhou, and Hangzhou.

June 23-July 7, 1991

Cost: $2,695 (extra for single rooms and transportation to San Francisco)

Your tour includes:

- deluxe hotel accommodations
- three meals per day within China
- all inter-China transportation
- visits to the Great Wall of China, universities, Shanghai State Church, and much more
- all cultural performances including the Shanghai acrobats
- roundtrip airfare from San Francisco, California
- all transportation between airports and hotels

Myron has spent the past six years in Beijing in business and education. His involvement with the university and the Chinese government will enhance your experience and make this trip one to remember.

The 8,000-square-foot addition to Alford Auditorium is addressing current space needs of music and drama. The new building houses a large rehearsal room for vocal and instrumental groups, electronic music computer lab, music libraries, faculty studios and offices, and instrument storage area. Drama production is facilitated by space for set building and storage, dressing rooms, and rest rooms. All of Alford is now air-conditioned.

Faculty member Barbara Loach '77 recently completed doctoral studies in Latin American literature at The Ohio State University. She researched contemporary Chilean women authors for her dissertation. Cedarville has promoted her to associate professor of Spanish.

Alumni Weekend

Vicki Butler '80, alumni council representative and basketball enthusiast, talks with Coach Don Callan, '86H, before the alumni games.

Alums enjoy the reception after the varsity game.

During the alumni free-throw contest at half-time of the varsity game, alumni and friends won sweatshirts by making three out of five free throws.

Barb Jacobs '88 and Sue Terkelsen '88, enjoy renewing friendships during Alumni Weekend.

Mark Combs Sr. '79N and Mark Combs Jr. show off the alumni sweatshirt Mark Sr. won during the half-time free-throw contest. He remarked, "I can't believe I made three free throws after all these years!"

Lee '73 and Karyn (Peterson) '72 Eck chat with Steve Shank '73 at the Alumni Basketball Brunch.

Luci Swindoll

Luci Swindoll visited Cedarville College on February 1 and 2 to share her Celebrate Life Seminar with the College and surrounding community.

She expounded on ways to celebrate God, life, and relationships. Luci is the sister of Chuck Swindoll and is a former executive for Mobil Oil Corporation. Currently, she is vice president of public relations at Insight for Living, Chuck's international radio ministry.

Luci has written several books including: Wide My World, Narrow My Bed; Living and Loving the Single Life; After You've Dressed For Success; and The Alchemy of the Heart.

Luci maintains an ambitious speaking schedule across the United States. She motivates her audiences to celebrate life--to "take each day as a gift from God and live it with a genuine sense of adventure." If you ever have an opportunity to hear her speak, make every effort to do so.

Luci Swindoll brings laughter and enthusiasm to campus with her Celebrate Life seminars.

The women's alumni game ran a tight competition until the blue team broke away in the last quarter with a final score of 64-53.

Seventeen players showed their skills in the men's alumni basketball game. The final score was 127-81, blue over gold.

Dr. Jerry Falwell, chancellor of Liberty University and pastor of Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Virginia, was the speaker at Cedarville's annual pastors' conference in January. He spoke to approximately 100 area pastors and their wives, enjoyed lunch, and hosted a question-and-answer session. Our college students had the opportunity to hear Dr. Falwell in chapel during Winter Enrichment Week.

Several Cedarville alumni are members of One Accord, a choral group featured on a new album, Voices of Rejoice. A local Christian radio station along with Logos recording studio sponsored a contest for recording artists in the Dayton area. Out of 250 entries, One Accord was chosen as one of the ten groups to record the album. Alumni in the group are Roscoe '82 and Rhonda (Christ '83) Smith, Byron '84 and Karen (Yeager '85N) Clemens, John '81 and Sherri (Hakes '83) Hart, Calvin '74N and Diane (Capps '74N) Turner, and Shelby Browning '90. Other members are Terra Estridge, Larry Reid, and Wayne Simpson.

One Year Later

Mike Davis '90

Keeping Troops In Touch

One year after graduating from Cedarville College with a degree in broadcasting, Mike Davis '90 is doing just that—BROADCASTING!

Mike never dreamed he would be sending messages from loved ones to troops serving the United States in the Persian Gulf. Sending these recorded messages via shortwave radio began on Friday, January 18. World Harvest Radio, Incorporated (WHRI) of Noblesville, Indiana, provides access to their shortwave facilities which operate 24 hours per day with a nine-million-watt transmitter targeted at Europe and the Middle East. Any person wishing to send a message can do so by calling 219-299-4239. An answering device is set up to answer and record messages which must be kept to 30 seconds. These messages are broadcast to the Persian Gulf several times each day.

Davis states this is the most exciting ministry he has been involved with. "Compared to what they (the servicemen and women) are doing for us, this is really a small thing," Davis states. Mike also emphasizes this broadcasting ministry is a service to meet the needs of people. Upon request, he has been sending tapes of Christian artists to the troops. How did all this come about? Mike claims "hard work, dream big, and trust the Lord for direction."

As a child, in Sao Paulo, Brazil, Mike was fascinated with radio and learned to imitate lightning-fast Brazilian sports announcers while listening to soccer games broadcast in Portuguese. His father helped him make the decision to get into radio and attend school in the United States. They decided on Cedarville.

Davis joined LeSEA Broadcasting as account executive after graduation. His position deals mainly with selling program time and consulting with production teams.

But Mike also began responding to the many letters WHRI (a subsidiary of LeSEA) receives from their broadcasts to 118 countries in six different languages. Davis personally answers each letter from listeners and occasionally even phones listeners to thank them for tuning in. Since Mike was raised in Brazil and the majority of the programs are in Portuguese, Davis uses many personal contacts in Brazil to cater the programming to Portuguese-speaking listeners.

Sharon VanDommelen '90, enjoys her special patients

The Lessons Of Love

Sharon VanDommelen '90 began her nursing career in August 1990 at Mott Children's Hospital on the campus of University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

After spending a summer visiting family and friends, it was difficult to move into her first job. "Leaving Cedarville College behind has been hard, but I don't really think I've left. I have tried to apply all that I learned at Cedarville to my new job." Sharon states that her clinical training was helpful. "I learned more from the professors' examples than any classroom work. To watch Lois Baker in a clinical situation is amazing!" She says that it has been easier to love her patients because of all the love she received at Cedarville.

Sharon works on the oncology and hematology floor. She is in touch with dying children every day. Many of her patients are HIV positive.

Sharon states, "I am constantly dealing with life and death. In a period of four days the nursing staff has seen three deaths. I have a different perspective than most on my floor. Even doctors ask how I can be joyful. I love those questions because then I can share my faith and biblical beliefs." Sharon finds opportunities to share with patients, family members, co-workers, and doctors almost every day.

A little five-year-old boy named Shane has been a special patient of Sharon's. He has Burkett's lymphoma which relapsed over Thanksgiving. Shane receives all his nutrients through IV, along with several doses of chemotherapy each day.

"Shane is generally very pleasant and although you know he is in pain, he doesn't usually complain. However, one day in particular Shane was very upset at the thought of being ugly without any hair. It was very touching."

Sharon will administer a bone marrow transplant to Shane in the near future. She is certified in this procedure.

Sharon still loves to socialize, but with her versatile and hectic work schedule, she has to make every minute count. "Being busy helps relieve stress from the job," states Sharon, "and I tend to take my work home with me." She is currently involved in her county's Right to Life Chapter and attends Highland Park Baptist Church. Other "tension relievers" include talking to family and friends and praying for her patients. Sharon plans to take the GRE in April and begin work toward a master's degree.

Shaun Hannay '90

Back On Campus

Shaun Hannay '90 was thrilled at graduation last year. He had earned his BA in Business Administration with concentrations in accounting and finance, had a job lined up for the summer, and had built lots of memories during the previous four years. His family was present to watch him walk across the platform, take his diploma in one hand, and shake the President's hand with the other. After graduation, they took him back to New York to work in the family business for the summer.

So why is Shaun back on campus so soon after graduation? His fiancée, Diane Davison '92N, may claim that she is the reason he returned—and she is right! She is part of the reason.

But Shaun also felt a need to get out on his own. The position of staff accountant at Cedarville College has provided Shaun with the opportunity to do just that. Hannay interviewed for the position in September and now works with the college budget and monthly reporting system.

Shaun first heard about the position through Tim Walters '89, a good friend and women's track coach for the College. His friendship with Walters also led to another exciting reason for returning to Cedarville—Shaun's love for track and field. As an assistant coach, he works with Walters, Elvin King '64N, and John McGillivray '70 training athletes for field events. The team has had several indoor meets this winter, including the Cedarville Invitational on February 16.

Shaun was involved in track and field all four years of his Cedarville College career, competing in discus, shotput, hammer, and javelin throws. The opportunity to continue with a hobby which developed in high school has been exciting.

Shaun was asked to help with the development of the new outdoor track. He was able to give input during the planning stages, help with layout, and work on the track for two weeks during the summer. "All that's needed now is the money to finish the polyurethane surface," Shaun states. When completed, the track will have nine lanes, two pits, and will rank with The Ohio State University's track.

Shaun says that it is still fun to be on campus. He enjoys his work, having his friends around, attending the basketball games, and staying active with track.

John McGillivray, '70 physical education professor and men's soccer coach, was recently presented with the first ever Distinguished Merit Award by the Ohio Collegiate Soccer Officials Association (OCSOA). This award honored Coach McGillivray for his outstanding sportsmanship during his 17 years at Cedarville. McGillivray stresses that how a player conducts himself during a game is the true final score. John is coach of the West Team in NAIA Senior Bowl, April 21, in Las Cruces, New Mexico.

Students Minister To The Military

Students support troops in the Middle East by sending postcards. A little time and 19 cents help encourage the men and women in the military. These students are writing during their lunch hour.

A January 18th Xenia Gazette article stated, "At Wright State anti-war and pro-war demonstrators clashed, Antioch students protested, and Cedarville College students put up a 'wall of prayer'."

Other newspapers were interested in the wall in the Jeremiah Chapel. Reporters from Springfield and Columbus came to campus, and the Los Angeles Times and the Dallas Morning News picked it up over the wire services.

Responding to the events in the Middle East with prayer was typical of the Cedarville College family. They not only were supportive of the nation's president and the young volunteer army, but they also put into action what might well be one of the most intense and continuous prayer times the College has experienced.

During the first three weeks of the conflict, 2,600 names of men and women in the military were written on the original 77-foot wall, along with requests for spiritual and family needs. Additional boards were added, with a special area for P.O.W.'s and M.I.A.'s. Common sights in the Chapel are students sitting quietly in prayer before the wall or copying names and information to take along with them.

The College was in prayer long before the orange ribbons and flag displays became popular. Last fall, Student Government initiated early morning prayer meetings in the Chapel. Between 120 and 150 students gathered each morning to pray for their national leaders as well as their own loved ones.

Members of Student Government distributed names to students as they entered the Chapel on Day of Prayer in February. Each name on the wall was prayed for at least once on that day.

During Winter Quarter, Student Government also launched a letter writing campaign. They compiled and continually update a list of names and addresses of men and women in the military to distribute to students. Nate Misirian, a sophomore and chairperson for SG's Auxiliary Services Committee, says, "I, personally, try to write as much as I can. The students are writing individually and in their service groups. One women's prayer group took 50 names."

Student Government placed a photo collage in the College Center. It displays pictures of military personnel who are relatives of faculty and staff.

Misirian says that SG's goals are to uphold the military deployed in the Middle East in prayer and to encourage them through letters. God has shed spiritual blessings on those who committed themselves to these tasks. Many of these blessings will be known only in eternity.

Yellow Jacket Winter Sports UPDATE

by Mark Womack '82
Sports Information Director

In men's basketball, the Yellow Jackets were seeking their fourth straight 20-win season as they finished the regular season with a 20-10 record. They qualified for both the NAIA District 22 and NCCAA District II playoffs. The Jackets were the NCCAA national runner-up last year.

Coach Don Callan's ball club pulled off one of the greatest comebacks in school history before a packed Parents' Night crowd on February 16. After trailing by 22 points with 15:30 to play, the Jackets stormed back for a stunning 78-77 victory over Tiffin University. The home team's only lead came on Ron Pierce's lay-up with five seconds left.

The victory was a big one for the Jackets who had struggled since beating Rio Grande 89-86 on January 19 to go to 15-4. Cedarville had dropped six out of eight games before rallying to beat Tiffin.

Cedarville averages 93 points per game with five players averaging in double figures. Sophomore guard Ken Rucker leads the team in scoring and rebounding at 14.8 points and 9.0 rebounds per game.

The Jackets played in three tournaments early in the season. They won one and finished second in the other two. Cedarville captured the Wilfrid Laurier Tournament title in Ontario with Rucker being named the tourney MVP.

The Yellow Jackets failed to win their own tournament for the first time in six years, when the University of Western Ontario won the 13th annual event 109-100 over the host school. Missouri Western, ranked as high as number two in NCAA Division II, needed a desperation three-pointer at the buzzer to beat Cedarville 97-96 in the championship game of the Purdue Calument Tournament.

Meanwhile, the Lady Jackets ended their roundball season with a 10-15 record overall and 1-6 in the Western Buckeye Collegiate Conference.

Diane Rank, a 5'11" junior center, led the team by averaging 17.3 points and 9.1 rebounds per game. She became the fifth player in Cedarville women's basketball history to reach 1,000 points for her career, when she finished the year with 1,191.

Amy Zehr, a 5'9" sophomore forward, scored a school-record 41 points in the 112-76 victory over Earlham College in the Athletic Center on February 14. The previous mark of 39 was set in 1979 by all-time leading scorer Vicki Butler.

Zehr averaged 15.0 points and 9.0 rebounds per game. She led NAIA District 22 and the WBCC in field goal percentage at 60 percent, which also ranked her 17th nationally.

Fifty is a magic number this year in the life of Pat Dixon, associate professor of English and wife of Dr. Paul Dixon. On January 10, a huge birthday cake on the college lawn, 50 red roses presented in chapel, and many happy returns of the day helped Pat celebrate her 50th birthday. Many more birthdays, Pat!

Joni Shearer, 13-year-old daughter of Byron '68 and Libby (Ross '70) Shearer, played the part of Helen Keller in "The Miracle Worker," the winter drama production of the College. Byron, a former member and chairman of the Alumni Council, is assistant to the pastor at Grace Baptist Church in Cedarville. Both he and Libby are adjunct professors at the College.
